Army and Navy News

Information reached an Army officer last week from Washington that when more troops are established at Leluhua, with the Signal Corps represented, and after the aeroplane tests have reached a stage when the Army may go in for air flights on a scale commensurate with the measures taken by foreign armies to include air maneuvers in their programs, similar tests will be carried on at Leluhua. The site of the present cantonment and the future brigade post is on a great plain of level country, practically a mesa stretched out between two mountain ranges, where the winds are light, as a general rule. The tests could be carried on there almost uninterruptedly.

An officer, speaking of the method of attack which any hostile power's navy would have to employ in making Oahu an objective, has stated that any such attack would be very sudden. After a fleet is sighted it is practically within firing distance. While the wireless system might learn of the approach of the fleet, that method of acquiring the information is a contingency not to be depended upon. The aeroplane, if it becomes a practical part of the Army equipment, and is dependable for air maneuvering, would be an admirable scout, and for that reason it is said that the balloon corps of the Army may utilize Leluhua for tests in order that the air currents may be studied and recorded, so that thorough knowledge of them may be practically acquired by the latest addition to the Army force.

No Pay Unless on Ships.

WASHINGTON, April 9.—The opinion of the Attorney General, just received at the Navy Department, is the last chapter in the crisis through which the Marine Corps has recently passed. The opinion, which is of great interest to all branches of the military service, follows:

"I have your favor of March 9, 1909, calling my attention to a proviso in the act making appropriations for the naval service for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1910, as follows:

"Provided, That no part of the appropriations herein made for the Marine Corps shall be expended for the purposes for which said appropriations are made unless officers and enlisted men shall serve as heretofore on board all battleships and armored cruisers, and also upon such other vessels of the navy as the President may direct, in detachments of not less than 8 percent. of the strength of the enlisted men of the navy on said vessels."

"You say that entertaining doubt, in view of the terms and effect of this provision, respecting its constitutionality, you request for the guidance of your department my opinion thereon. In reply I beg to state that I have no doubt of the constitutionality of the provision of the statute which you quote."

"The Constitution, by article I, section 8, provides that the Congress shall have power to raise and support armies to provide and maintain a navy; to make rules for the government and regulation of the land and naval forces. This power to raise and support armies and provide and maintain a navy is plenary and without limitation of restriction; and Congress is the sole judge of how the army or navy shall be raised and of what it shall be composed. It may create a marine corps or it may, in its wisdom, determine that no marine corps is requisite."

"The particular statute to which you direct my attention is somewhat novel in that while providing for a marine corps and making appropriations of designated sums for its pay, it enacts that no part of these appropriations shall be expended unless officers and enlisted men shall serve, as has heretofore been the case, on board all battleships and armored cruisers, in detachments of not less than 8 per cent. of the strength of the enlisted men of the navy on said vessels."

"Article 2, section 2, of the Constitution provides that 'the President shall be the commander-in-chief of the army and navy of the United States, and of the militia of the several states when called into the actual service of the United States,' and section 3 requires that 'he shall take care that the laws be faithfully executed.'"

"If, therefore, in the discharge of his powers and duties as commander-in-chief the President desires to direct the Marine Corps to perform any function which shall involve the application of the appropriation made by the act above quoted, he must direct that 'officers and enlisted men' of the corps 'shall serve as heretofore on board all battleships' * * * in detachments of not less than 8 per cent. of the strength of the enlisted men of the navy on said vessel."

"Inasmuch as Congress has power to create or not to create, as it shall deem expedient, a marine corps, it has power to create corps, make appropriation for its pay, but provide that such appropriation shall not be available unless the marine corps be employed in some designated way, and I therefore am of opinion that the provision of the statute to which you direct my attention is constitutional."
